ISSUE #3

The Great White Brotherhood (The Great Old Ones) PART 3

The French philosopher, Rene Guenon, writing of secret societies which practice black magic, stated: "But might there not be, behind such movements, something far more dangerous which their leaders perhaps know nothing about, being in themselves in turn the unconscious tools of a higher power?"

This "higher power" is the Great White Brotherhood, who revealed themselves in Issue #2 as the Great Old Ones. We concluded our last report with a discussion of how radiation would be instrumental in unleashing the Old Ones upon humanity. An Ohio member of the O.T.O. wrote the following: "Their (i.e. the Old Ones) attempted employment of the proto-race constituted a conflict with the development of Man's autonomy; they were therefore escorted back to their own realm, and the Gateway was sealed. Since the Manhattan Project, however, the seal was dissolved. These alien entities are presently preparing for another attempt on 'our' universe. They have not forgotten the keys to the Forgotten Ones (subconscious energies within Man: Editor.); indeed, they have periodically managed an occasional breach in the fabric of space-time before the Gateway re-opened."

The above reference to the Manhattan Project is interesting. The Manhattan Project was the top-secret programme of research and development that led to the birth of the atomic bomb. This project was headed by Dr. Enrico Fermi at Columbia University in 1941. By 1942, the project had moved to the University of Chicago.

Alice Bailey, founder of the Lucis Trust (formerly the Lucifer Publishing Company), said the atomic bomb was developed by "the Hierarchy" (a reference to the Great White Brotherhood), working through "fifth ray or scientific workers." In other words, the Old Ones knew that radiation was the key to their triumph -- and possibly exerted psychic control upon the scientists for that reason.

Just why are the Old Ones so interested in returning? The same Ohio member of the O.T.O. writes " . . . for a certain span of our unrecorded history, our survival-force was controlled and employed by entities from 'beyond' our Universe. Known as the Elder Gods, these beings attempted to extend their sphere of influence beyond their own environs, and they selected pre-Man as a potential instrument for their purpose. Alien beyond human imagining, they cannot be construed as 'evil'. Their main purpose is to devour, and since their structure is incompatible with 'our' Universe's physics, they can but eat by means of the life-forms native to our Universe." (Quoted from "Outside The Circles Of Time" by Kenneth Grant.)

In Issue #2, we stated that upon manifestation, the Old Ones would consume the life-force of the human beings who would die in a nuclear holocaust. We connected this to the abominable rites of the Plateau of Leng, spoken of by H.P. Lovecraft. This esoteric cannibalism does not refer to only the consumption of the life-force -- but to human flesh and blood as well. The O.T.O. may be preparing for an evolutionary leap into a state of godhood; but the Old Ones are preparing for dinner!!!

Concerning the return of the Old Ones, O.T.O. Grand Master, Kenneth Grant writes: "It is not therefore surprising that sensitive souls are now recoiling in horror because they have seen -- in the swirling black mirror of the Abyss -- the shades massing for an unprecedented influx into the cosmos. The breach has been made by nuclear activity that has disturbed the balance of the ions, and unless the correct keys are applied, the circles of consciousness will be invaded by powers from the other side."

Grant continues: "The ancients were aware of the crack in space through which such an invasion could pour, and more than one great Mystery School has posited Daath (Editor: a Cabalistic term) as the point of entry. The myth of the Old Ones returning to reclaim the thrones of the Earth is a very ancient theme and one that has been revived in recent decades not only in the fictional writings of such natural sensitives as Arthur Machen, Algernon Blackwood (Editor: Both members of the Golden Dawn), H.P. Lovecraft, etc., but also in the writings of physicists who are aware of the occult implications revealed by nuclear and sub-nuclear research." (The reader will note that the Ohio O.T.O. member and Kenneth Grant disagree on one point. Grant says there is a "breach", while the Ohio member says that the seal has been "dissolved." On the other hand, your editor believes that it will take a nuclear explosion to completely unseal the Gateway -- and that is why events are moving in that direction.)

In the years 1939-1945, our Earth was bombarded by pulsed electromagnetic radiation put out by radar units operating on land, sea and from aircraft. For the first time in history, the entire planet was feeling the breath of radiation at unprecedented power levels. Radiation from the Manhattan Project, from the explosions at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and from radar sets, all helped to partially unseal the Gateway.

Today, UFO's and strange creatures seem to have a propensity for appearing around power plants and nuclear installations. It is also possible that many of the reported security breaches that have occurred at these installations have been attempts by sinister cults to aid the Old Ones in their manifestation. The Enrico Fermi Power Plant in Michigan has had its share of vandalism and "materials failures." At the same time, there have been monster sightings on a nearby road. The most famous disaster was that of the Three Mile Island Plant in Pennsylvania on March 28, 1979. At least one area newspaper hinted at sabotage, and expressed the belief that the culprits were a group calling themselves the Neo-American Church -- a cult of devil worshippers who use LSD in their rituals.

In New Mexico (1967), a nuclear device was detonated for the purpose of stimulating natural gas production. The area in which the detonation took place became a cattle mutilation zone from 1976-1978. In 1978 alone, more than half of New Mexico's mutilations occurred in this area.

In these mutilation cases, the cattle are sometimes totally drained of blood, and often have the organs removed. There are usually no footprints at these sites. At times, it appears that the mutilated animal has been picked up and dropped from a great height. In his tale, "The Lurker At The Threshold", August Derleth speaks of humans who were taken by the Old Ones and whose bodies were later found having the appearance that they were dropped from a great height.

Cattle mutilation sites also feature mysterious, nocturnal lights. Derleth points out that the Old Ones often appear as "iridescent globes." In the previously mentioned "Lurker", Derleth gives examples of ships at sea where the crew saw lights in the sky. Derleth attributes these lights to the movements of the Old Ones. UFOlogist John Keel informs us that the majority of UFO sightings have been of soft, luminous objects, with the ability to change size and shape. They are often transparent -- and able to disappear suddenly. Sightings of metallic objects are few by comparison.

Some UFO witnesses have told Keel that they had the impressions that the object they saw was not mechanical... but alive. Even Kenneth Arnold, the man who helped coin the term "flying saucers" in 1947, eventually came to the conclusion that the saucers were some form of living energy. The Old Ones could be at least part of the answer to the UFO enigma and the cattle mutilation mystery.

The Parsons - Hubbard Experiments

At the same time that the initial radiation build-up was going on (1945), an unusual set of experiments were taking place in California. Radiation, plus black magic experimentation, coincided to forge a break in the Gateway. Shortly after, the modern UFO wave began.

Jack Parsons was head of the California Lodge of the O.T.O. He was a physical chemist, and one of the original founders of Cal Tech (Cal Tech is located on Latitude 33, the mystical number of the Freemasonry). In 1945, Parsons met L. Ron Hubbard. This is the same Hubbard, who a few years later was to reveal the "science of Dianetics" -- and after that form the Church of Scientology.

Hubbard had told Parsons that he was in contact with an entity called the Empress, described as a winged-woman with red hair. This convinced Parsons that Hubbard had a highly developed astral vision, and would therefore be a good partner for occult experimentation.

The experiment Parsons had in mind was the creation of a "Moonchild." This requires a magical operation based on the theory that a certain type of spirit can be incarnated into an unborn human embryo. Parsons's mistress consented to undergo the ritual. At one point, they performed an evocation which brought forth an entity in the form of a yellow-brown light (Remember, the Old Ones often appear in light-form). This entity caused a paralysis in the arm of Hubbard; but was vanquished by Parsons who touched the light-form with a magically inscribed sword. There are many cases in UFO lore where a percipient is paralyzed during an alien encounter. Often, the contactee is visited in his bedroom by an entity in light form, and paralysis is a frequent result. It is possible that the paralysis is caused by the drain of energy.

In any event, the experiment (to create a Moonchild) didn't work, and Hubbard absconded with Parsons money -- and with his mistress. After losing his mistress to Hubbard, Parsons decided to conjure an elemental spirit to act as his mate. One evening, after performing a magical operation, a woman named Marjorie Cameron turned up in Parsons home. Parsons immediately recognized her as having the qualifications of the elemental he required. (This could indicate that she was demon possessed). He believed that she was the perfect vehicle to bring forth the Moonchild.

If the preceding sounds fantastic, the following is even more so. For Hubbard returned and asked forgiveness -- and Parsons consented. Hubbard then helped Parsons fend off an astral attack by a black-robed figure. Hubbard pinned the figure to the door, using four knives. It remained there until Parsons gave it license to depart.

Although the experiment to create a Moonchild was never successful, Kenneth Grant believes that the experiments were instrumental in opening a Gateway -- as possibly evidenced by the encounter with the light form. Through his association with his "elemental" (Cameron), Parsons was led even deeper down the dark path. In 1949, he crossed the Abyss via astral projection. Upon his return, he issued a book called "The Book Of Antichrist." Parsons called for an end to all authority, and personally identified himself with the Anti-Christ, even changing his name to Belarion Armiluss Al Dajjal Antichrist. His book was divided into two parts -- "The Black Pilgrimage" and "The Manifesto Of The Antichrist." On June 17, 1952, Parsons was killed when he dropped a phial of fulminate of mercury. He perished in flames!!!

The Cult Of The Black Snake

Opening dimensional gateways has been the domain of such groups as the Salem Witches, the American Indian sorcerers, and the Black Sect of Tibetan Lamaism. This Black Sect is set up in Masonic fashion, with its highest degrees called "Illuminated Masters." It is our guess that some of the MIB are recruited from the Tibetan Black Sect due to its proximity to the Shambhala portal. It may also be possible to identify the Black Sect with the Brothers of the Shadow, an order which functions within Eastern mysticism. Just as UFO contactees are threatened by the MIB, Eastern mystics are threatened by the Shadow Brothers when they get too close to lifting the Veil of Isis (Remember, Isis is a symbol of Sirius -- and Sirius is the symbol of extra-cosmic forces).

Another cult worth mentioning existed in the 18th century at Harvard. This group was called The Bretheren of the New Light. Their doctrines were drawn from the Salem Witches who had gone underground following the outbreak of 1692. Led by Shadrach Ireland and his consort, Abigail Lougeem, the Bretheren believed that the inhabitants of the Earth were to be destroyed by powers from "Beyond". Only the Brethren would survive the invasion -- and attain immortality while reigning with the Old Ones.

Today, the secret society most associated with "forces from beyond" is the O.T.O. There is another Order connected with the O.T.O. known as the Cult of the Black Snake. To understand its history, we must return to the early part of this century where we shall encounter Dr. Gerard Encausse (1865-1916). Encausse was better known to the world by his code name, Papus.

Papus was connected to such secret societies as the Kabbalistic Order of the Rose-Croix, the Martinists, the French branch of the Masonic Rite of Memphis and Misraim, the O.T.O., and the Theosophical Society. He was also a bishop of a neo-Cathar Church in France (The Cathars were a revolutionary heretical sect of the Middle Ages, best known for their practice of ritual suicide, and thus one of the earliest versions of the People's Temple of the Rev. Jim Jones). Papus was also associated with Claude DeBussy, Grand Master of the Order of Zion.

During his stay in Russia, Papus established a Martinist Lodge (spirit conjuration) in St. Petersburg. Czar Nicholas The Second became president of this Lodge -- a Lodge said to be governed by "Unknown Superiors". Together with his friend Phillippe, Papus then formed the Great Universal League, also in St. Petersburg.

The Universal League was composed of revolutionaries and sorcerers, and played a role in the downfall of the Romanovs. Papus later introduced Phillippe into the Romanov Court, where he quickly initiated Empress Alexandra into spiritism. In this weakened condition, she was later to fall victim to the machinations of the sinister Rasputin.

Both the French and Russian Revolutions were preceeded by waves of occultism, signifying that the conspirators understand that the black arts help to pave the way for the weakening of a nation. We mention all of the above to show the importance of Papus in world events. His movements helped to bring about the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

Another initiate of the O.T.O. who helped lay the groundwork for the 1917 Revolution was Cardinal Mariano Rampolla (1843-1913). Rampolla was also Vatican Secretary of State -- a position he attained with the aid of the Jesuits. Rampolla kept a nun as his mistress, encouraged others to do the same, and commanded a network of Freemasons who successfully penetrated not only the Catholic Church, but the Romanov government as well. The agents of Rampolla were influential in Vatican affairs right up to the election of Pope Paul VI in 1963. These activities of Papus and Rampolla indicate that the O.T.O. does indeed have continuity with the Knights Templar and with the Illuminati.

Earlier than his Russian venture, Papus had been in Paris, where, as head of the French branch of the O.T.O., he was visited by Lucien-Francois Jean-Maine (1869-1960), an adept in Haitian Voodoo. Through his contract with Papus, Jean-Maine learned about the rituals of the O.T.O. In 1921, Jean-Maine returned to Haiti, and formed the O.T.O.A. (Order Templi Orientis Antiqua). In 1922, he founded the Cult of the Black Snake. This Cult combines the rituals of the O.T.O. with the rituals of Voodoo. The Voodoo rituals are said to derive from the Red Temple and Black Temple magic of the lost continent of Atlantis.

Jean-Maine was in contact with the entity named Lam, as are the modern members of the Black Snake Cult. In Issue #2, we mentioned Lam as the being whose task it is to fuse the current emanating from the Andromeda Galaxy with the current from Sirius. Since Sirius is a symbol of extra-cosmic forces, it is perhaps safe to assume that any reference made by the O.T.O. to Andromeda, is also a reference to extra-cosmic forces. In other words, there is a large hole or portal in the Andromeda Galaxy, which is in some way related to the opening of the Gateway that will allow the Old Ones to reclaim Earth.

Even before Jean-Maine entered into rapport with Lam, Aleister Crowley had done so. In 1919, Crowley made a drawing of Lam which appeared in an exhibition in Greenwich Village, New York. This drawing is reprinted in Kenneth Grant's book "The Magical Revival." Grant has stated that Lam is one of the Great Old Ones. This means that Lam can assume any shape or form, just as we saw with Aiwaz (Issue #1) and Choronzon (Issue #2). In the drawings, Lam appears to look like the classic science-fiction alien. He has a large bulging bald head, small slit-like eyes, small nostrils, and a slit-like mouth. It is interesting to note that those who claim to have encountered UFO occupants, often describe them in words that match the features of Lam!!!

Aleister Crowley, Jean-Marie, and the current Black Snake Cult have all been in contact with Lam, as is the O.T.O. They contact this entity through magical rites and via astral projection. On the other hand, UFO percipients describe aliens who resemble Lam. Are they witnessing the same entity? We believe that they are.

Let us now look at the Cult of the Black Snake a little more closely. The Cult's headquarters is in Haiti, amidst the Voodoo-promoting Duvalier dynasty. The Outer Court of the Cult is in Chicago. It is known as the Monastery of the Seven Rays. The Seven Rays are said to represent the seven paths of evolution which are available to Mankind. Other power-zones are in Ecuador and Madrid. The Cult has also forged an alliance with the O.T.O. in London and New York.

The Cult is set up in four degrees, and has two auxiliary cults attached to it. The first is known as the Cult of Choronzon. It is based on Lovecraft's conception of non-human forces existing between dimensions. The second is called The Lovecraftian Coven, and is usually led by a priestess of the Black Snake Cult.

Male members of the Black Snake are referred to as Fiends; female members are called Fiendesses. They practice what can best be described as "astral lycanthropy." During their astral travels, they are said to assume the form of a wolf. They believe that the assumption of wolf-form enables them to regain aspects of consciousness which Mankind lost during the transition from the animal kingdom to the human. If such a technique is really possible, we may have a clue to the werewolf legend.

Small groups of Cult Initiates, together with their leader, often meet by a deserted lake in Wisconsin (According to August Derleth, Wisconsin is a Cthulhu (power zone). There they have been successful in evoking entities whose point of entry lies within the lake. We will have more to say about Wisconsin Lakes in the next chapter.

TENTACLES

The Old Ones came from a universe where life, energy, and matter are radically different. Berosus and other ancient historians compiled records as to how these monstrous entities swarmed into our sphere. The most complete transmission of their arrival upon Earth is contained in the mysterious Book of Dyzan — the oldest book in the world. The book of Dyzan is hidden away somewhere in Tibet, and is believed to be the basis of Madame Blavatsky's "Secret Doctrine."

According to the "fiction" of H.P. Lovecraft and August Derleth, the Old Ones are amorphous, protoplasmic, occasionally bat-winged, and often tentacled. One always receives a shudder when reading a tale of the Cthulhu Mythos — particularly when one of these tentacled entities appear. It is even more terrifying to learn that the O.T.O. — a secret society having continuity with the Templars and the Illuminati — talks of having evoked octopoidal entities.

Kenneth Grant says that certain sensitive individuals known personally to himself have seen the archetype of the noxious entity, Yog-Sothoth. In the Cthulhu Mythos (some say that they should more properly be termed the Yog-Sothoth Mythos), Yog-Sothoth appears as an "octopoid cephalopod," with a central eye that has a red glow. In "The Lurker At The Threshold" — the story upon which Kenneth Grant places the most heavy emphasis — Yog-Sothoth is described as "protoplasmic flesh" and as a "tentacled amorphous monster" which exists as "primal slime."

In the book "Outside The Circles Of Time" by Kenneth Grant, there is a drawing of Yog-Sothoth as conceived by an Ohio member of the O.T.O. to whom we shall refer as Sister A. Yog-Sothoth is shown with twelve tentacles, a large eye, and a bulging, human-type brain. There are some cryptic markings on a nearby rock, which apparently had to be present for the evocation ceremony. Such cryptic markings have also been found on the rocks and shorelines of a number of North American Lakes — lakes where "sea serpents" have often been seen.

As we pointed out earlier, the Cult of the Black Snake has successfully evoked entities from a Wisconsin Lake. Apparently the point of entry for many of these creatures, lies in watery areas — a fact which did not elude Lovecraft. Two lakes in Wisconsin that have had their share of monster sightings are Lake Monona and Lake Mendota. In August of 1882, at Rock Lake in Wisconsin, several men in a boat sighted a saurian monster. A few minutes later, the air became heavy, and filled with a putrid stench. Those who have studied demonology realize that a stench is often associated with the appearance of a demon. It is also common to UFO landing sights. Several have noticed that such landing sights are often filled with a terrible stench. In "The Dunwich Horror," Lovecraft said that the presence of the Old Ones is often accompanied by a stench. We shall cover this more fully later.

Since we mentioned sea serpents, it must be noted that several investigators believe that the Loch Ness Monster is a paranormal entity. Interestingly enough, Aleister Crowley's mansion in Boleskine overlooked Loch Ness!!!

It is now time to look at a few cases that could give credibility to the existence of an entity such as Yog-Sothoth. In 1903, the Russian ship Ivan Vassili was terrorized by an invisible entity. One by one the crew members began to commit suicide, seemingly afraid to live any longer. After a suicide took place, the feeling of fear among the crew would subside. Then, a few days later, the fear would return as though it was being projected into the crew members. The entity was apparently appeased by the suicides — a possible indication that it was absorbing the life-force given off at death. The captain of the ship eventually shot himself; but not before he described the entity (in his log) as "a black octopus of horror." This could have been a figurative description. However, the events portrayed do sound like what one could expect from the Old Ones. Was this "black octopus" the noxious Yog-Sothoth (or one of his minions)? The psychic projection of fear and the ability to live off of human energy, makes it a possibility.

The next case took place in November, 1974, at Bald Mountain, south east of Tacoma, Washington. Looking through binoculars, a man saw a "green-glowing creature" with a horselike body. The creature's legs appeared to be the tentacles of an octopus. A drawing of the beast can be found in Jim Brandon's book, "The Rebirth Of Pan."

In his book "America Bewitched", the well known psychic Daniel Logan tells of an apartment which he visited, and from which he received bad vibrations. A friend of his took pictures at the apartment. After they were developed, she noticed that something was wrong. She took them to Logan who experienced "feelings of dread" upon viewing. Concerning the photographs, Logan writes: "What was wrong with them was that strange lights and flashes seemed to be crossing over them. The widest and strongest band of light in most of the photos was wrapped around Alan (a 13 year old boy who lived in the apartment with his mother — Editor). A fuzzy tentaclelike light embraced Alan in all the pictures in which he appeared. You could see the light ray coiled around his body, like the arm of a giant octopus." Logan then notes that others who viewed the pictures also received weird impressions.

Another case history worth looking at is found in an issue of Flying Saucer Review (Issue #14), in an article by UFOlogist Gray Barker. This case concerns the famous inventor, Nikola Tesla. Apparently, Tesla often had dreams with strong Lovecraftian overtones. After these dreams, he would speak of having seen unpleasant dwellers in "alternate worlds." It was from one of these dreams that he received the idea for a device which came to be called the Faraday Screen. (Both Lovecraft and Kenneth Grant acknowledge that the dream-state is the classical method of being contacted by the Old Ones.)

The Faraday Screen was to be a device capable of seeing into other dimensions. The machine would pick up brain impressions, and then transmit them to a screen. Although Tesla never constructed such a device, a friend of his did. After building the screen-device, this friend slipped out one night and hid in a thicket where he would be able to test the contraption without interruption. The device worked. Mosaic-like patterns appeared on the screen, and eventually formed themselves into the frightful figure of an octopoidal entity. At the same time, a humming sound was heard, apparently coming from nearby underbrush.

A humming or buzzing sound is often said to accompany a low-flying UFO. This is something that most UFOlogists are aware of. However, in occult lore, the buzzing is said to denote the presence of the Old Ones. The Arabic title of the Necronomicon, Al Azif, means "that nocturnal sound (produced by the buzzing of insects) supposed to be the howling of demons."

During the 1970's, the Ohio O.T.O. conducted magical operations which were successful in establishing contact with the Old Ones. These manifestations of the Old Ones (in their supposedly benevolent capacity as the Children of Maat) were accompanied by elemental disturbances and by loud buzzing sounds. Ohio has been considered by some UFOlogists as a "window area", i.e., an area where UFO flaps frequently occur. At around the same time as the O.T.O. was performing its experiments, Ohio had a high ratio of UFO sightings and bizarre incidents. Sister A, who we mentioned earlier, participated in these magical operations. She was soon to lose her home and job. Her personal life deteriorated — just as the personal lives of the UFO contactees deteriorate.

Even before the 1970's, Ohio was known for strange happenings. In 1964, a phantom ape-man covered with yellow fuzz, terrorized a part of the state. The ape-man was said to have a pointed head, pig-like ears and nose, and fangs. It was seen to vanish into thin air, as is sometimes the case with other Bigfoot type creatures. In 1968, a ten foot tall ape-man with tanish fur, pointed ears, and fangs was seen. This creature was capable of exerting a hypnotic influence. When shot at, it vanished in a white mist.

In the early 1970's, Ohio had more reports of monster-men, and of poltergeist manifestations. The bulk of the O.T.O. experiments took place in 1974-75 -- and concluded in 1976. In 1977, Ohio was terrorized by a phantom panther which was responsible for killing five peacocks, a German Shepherd, several ducks, and 140 head of sheep. These phantom panthers appear in areas where such animals cannot possibly exist. They are often said to possess luminous eyes — just like Bigfoot, UFO aliens, and Yog-Sothoth.

August Derleth said that although the Old Ones have a definite form, they can assume any shape they desire. Whether these phantom panthers, ape-men, etc., are the Old Ones themselves, or whether they are a lower-level entity — the type of which legend depicts as witches' familiars — cannot be certain.

Let's explore the buzzing-humming sound a bit further. While the Old Ones manifest themselves with a humming sound, it is also possible that they can be contacted by a group chanting in such a manner so as to produce a subliminal humming vibration. According to August Derleth, the Gateway is all places at all times — wherever the proper words are spoken.

The Hindu mantra, OM, when vibrated in a rising and falling chant, will produce such a humming sound. The OM-mantra is from the Sanskrit. OM means the sun. Our sun is considered by the occultists to be a reflection of Sirius (see Issue # 1 for more details). Thus, the OM-mantra could be an invocation to the entities who first entered our Universe through the Sirius portal. In other words, Sirius is considered sacred because it was the point of entry of the gods of the occult, the Great Old Ones. In a sense, the Sirius portal gave birth to the Old Ones. So when your Guru tells you to chant the OM-mantra, you now know to whom you are giving homage.

In England (1964), a woman was walking to church when she suddenly heard a humming sound over her head. She was pinned against the churchyard wall, and was held by what she described as "an icy hand." At the same time in a nearby home, a couple was awakened by a noise on their roof which was accompanied by a "strange droning." Another family viewed a glowing UFO.

Again in England (1891), a family named Rime rented a small house. Immediately, strange events occurred. When they were asleep, the blankets would be lifted off the bed and thrown into a heap. Doors would be violently shaken. Horrible noises were frequently heard. These noises were almost always preceded by a humming sound. This case is of course a poltergeist haunting — yet it features a humming sound.

And at Fatima, Portugal (1917), this humming sound was heard by witnesses as the shepherd children conversed with what they presumed was "Our Lady." The Fatima miracle was also attended by a fall of "angel hair." Angel hair is a silky sticky, web-like substance that has often been reported to be found on trees after a hovering UFO has left the scene. There was a large shower of the stuff in New Mexico on February 21, 1958. In France (1952), angel hair floated down upon treetops and telegraph wires after a UFO formation passed by. Eyewitnesses gathered the substance, but it disintegrated before any analysis could be made. We believe that this angel hair is some sort of secretion given off by the Old Ones. If UFOs were solely mechanical, then this sort of thing would not be happening. Angel hair is also said to be similar to ectoplasm — the substance produced out of a medium's body during a trance!!!

The Final Battle of the Three Pyramids

by Kenneth W. Behrendt

Conspiracy theories are the product of uncertain times and the current rise of such speculations are, no doubt, due to the enormous potential for holocaustic catastrophe that has developed as we approach the end of the second millenium. One may endlessly ponder the validity of any particular scenario, but the fact that abrupt changes are taking place at all levels on our planet surely indicates that something big is in the wings and that, as usual, the proverbial man in the street will be the last to obtain even most of the horrifying details.

In this short article, I want to share with my readers a scenario which many years of passive observation and active research have convinced me is the most probable "end game" for humanity as it hurdles toward the dawn of the New Age. It is my belief that if one is forewarned of what shall surely come, then their chance of personal survival will be greatly enhanced (but, unfortunately, not guaranteed).

I can begin by pointing out that at present, the world can be divided into a triad of forces, each of which is in conflict with the other two for possession of the "hearts and minds" of humanity. Each planetary force feels that it is the one that best serves the interests of the robotic masses whose automatic breeding continuously converts solar energy and atmospheric gasses into more human biomass. Each force feels that it should provide the mind for humanity's body so that it can lead earth's swarms toward their most natural state of existence. Each force is, of course, starkly different from the other two and realize that in the coming conflict only one may emerge the winner. In true Darwinian fashion, we may expect the philosophically strongest to persist and prevail.

What exactly are these planetary forces? Who composes them and what are their modes of operation and goals? What are their ultimate plans for humanity? I believe that I can now give a reasonable outline for the answers to the above awesome questions.

We may liken each force to a pyramid in structural organization. The mindless masses in each structure are, of course, at the bottom layer and perform all of the distasteful chores that make solar energy and the resulting ability to manipulate the environment available to the individuals in the lofty capstones. Between the bottom layer and capstone there are many courses of social institutions each of which parasitically feeds upon the layer below it and is, in turn, fed upon by the layer above it. The base layers of each pyramid have only the very slightest control over the upper levels, while the upper levels maintain rigid and nearly complete control over the lower levels.

One pyramid may be called the "blue pyramid" and it represents the nations that make up the so-called "free" world. It talks much about preserving the freedoms and dignity of its people in the street, but it also allows freedom of various capitalistic institutions that profit at the expense of the less fortunate and desperate. The blue pyramid's philosophy is basically "survival of the richest and luckiest."

The next pyramid may be called the "red pyramid" and it is composed of the various communist and socialist dictatorships on earth that make up the so-called "closed" world. It talks much about maintaining the freedom and dignity of its people in the street by eliminating capitalism, but in all cases replaces its various evils with a single government task master. The red pyramid's philosophy is "survival of the poorest and unluckiest."

The last pyramid is the "white pyramid" and it represents the groups that compose the so-called "occult" world. Its members live above and below the earth and are extraterrestrial and subterrestrial in origin. It is these beings that are responsible for many of the UFO sightings and miraculous "religious" events. Their message is that the freedom and dignity of humanity can only be achieved when the structures of the blue and red pyramids are permanently destroyed. The white pyramid's philosophy is "survival of the unorganized and independent."

All three pyramids are, of course, acutely aware of and greatly disturbed by the existence of the other two pyramids. All three are actively at this moment working for the elimination of the other two. While the blue and red pyramids keep their lower levels from disorganizing by filling them with fear of being vaporized if they do so, the white pyramid, which is based on an ultimate lack of structure, has already determined what the remainder of this century will be like and communicated this to its own lower levels and now, through this article, to the lower levels of the blue and red pyramids.

This communication process was begun on May 13, 1917 when a peasant girl named Lucia dos Santos and her two cousins made verified contact with members of the white pyramid at Fatima, Portugal. It is no accident that their first contact occurred at the same time as Lenin was leading an assault on a church in Russia that resulted in the murder of its clergy. It is also no accident that two of the famous three prophecies given the children deal with the conflicts then raging and to rage between the blue and red pyramids. The third prophecy given Lucia, however, was not revealed to humanity until the "right" time. It was eventually written down and delivered to the Vatican and in 1960 was opened and read by Pope John XXIII.

Those present at his reading of this bizarre missive reported that the then pope turned white at reading it and had to be helped to his chair because of sudden weakness whereupon he claimed he had never read anything so horrible and that the message should immediately be sealed up and placed in the most secure vault of the Vatican library. Close followers of this pope agree it was the awesome contents of this letter that resulted in his steady deterioration of health and premature death in 1963.

The contents of the third prophecy of Fatima have for almost two decades now, also been known to the ultra elite intelligence controllers in the capstones of the blue and red pyramids, but yet they are at a slight loss to properly interpret its contents . . . or perhaps, they really do not want to face its implications and, in any event, would never share it with the mindless robots that maintain the structural integrity of their pyramids. For to do so would only guarantee that the third prophecy be fulfilled.

I, however, welcome the final results of the third prophecy and am now going to release its contents which I have derived from my study of this subject and a list of sources I dare not reveal.

Basically, the third prophecy is this. In the closing decades of the twentieth century, enormous changes will take place in the earth's biosphere which will result in the premature deaths of about one in every three people now alive! Thus, about two billion people will perish, but the bulk of them will be from those now living below north latitude 30. The causes of these deaths will be primarily due to the effects of famines, disease plagues, droughts, floods, wars, earthquakes, and mass suicides. When this begins to occur in about the middle of this decade, the blue and red pyramids will make an attempt to secure themselves by seizing control of large parts of the earth's surface and ocean's. Thus, each pyramid will try to raise its height by enlarging its base. The USA will absorb Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, Antarctica, Greenland, and part of Europe. The USSR will absorb Africa, the Middle East, and will use its enormous stores of biological/chemical weapons to conquer India, China, Japan and Australia.

The world will then be roughly divided into two equal powers and there will be no doubt about the reality of the blue and red pyramids.

By the middle of the 1990's, however, the blue pyramid will finally conquer the red pyramid, but will itself, shortly afterward, undergo rapid disintegration. This conquest will not be through the use of thermonuclear weapons as the masses have been led to believe, but rather will utilize craft that are equipped with propulsion systems similar to those inside the many UFOs that have been observed since about 1947. The scientific elite of the blue pyramid are, even now, quite close to unraveling the amazing secrets of the extraterrestrial propulsion systems so that they will be able to build craft that can reach any part of this planet in less than a minute and can do so in a state of total visual and radar invisibility. Linking this ultimate delivery system with computerized intelligence data on all of the land, sea and air defenses of the red pyramid will allow the blue pyramid to absorb the red pyramid in a single surprise attack that will only require one night because of the advanced technology that will be used.

For a few years the entire earth will be one giant blue pyramid and efforts will be made by its elite to maintain its unwieldy structure by making sure the human robots at its bottom layers do not obtain the almost unlimited mobility that craft using the new propulsion technology can provide. Once, however, the masses come out of their stupor and realize the mind games being played on them, they will rebel, obtain their own UFO-like vehicles, and the blue pyramid will sink down into chaos. This Collapse will be complete in 1998.

As the blue pyramid dissolves, its fleeing lower levels will join the triumphant white pyramid. Man will finally make contact with and befriend the extraterrestrial and subterrestrial races that the corrupt blue and red pyramids tried to prevent from liberating him. They will begin the new millenium in a state of harmony and peace and the man in the street (or saucer!) will finally achieve the freedom and dignity so long promised, but never dared delivered.

Since the contents of the first two prophecies of Fatima have come to pass on schedule, I have no doubts that the third will also be fulfilled as outlined above. I have often wondered if this prophecy is being brought about by the actions of the white pyramid forces or if it is just the final state toward which the flow of reality is pushing us. I now believe that the latter is indeed the case and that the extraterrestrial/subterrestrial beings responsible for the Miracle of Fatima were able to give such accurate predictions because they had ultra advanced computers at their disposal into which they had been fed all of our planet's various environmental factors at that time. The prophecies then must represent the results of super sophisticated computer projections and as such are probably close to 100% accurate. Therefore, the fact that you readers now understand the previously undisclosed third prophecy will make no difference, for this possibility has already been figured into the equations and at this "right" time is only of negligible significance to the timing of the events that shall come to pass . . .

The .22-Caliber Killer and The Occult Theocracy

The .22-Caliber Killer is Joseph Christopher, an ex-GI who says that he "was ordered to kill his victims as part of a mysterious conspiracy he cannot explain." (New York Post, 9/9/83) In an interview on Rikers Island (jailhouse), Christopher claimed to have committed two unsolved mutilation murders. In Buffalo, New York, he murdered two cab drivers — and then cut out their hearts. He says he has killed a total of 13 people. (The cutting out of the heart is a Satanic ritual. A few years ago in Yellowstone Park, a 21 year old man killed a social worker, cut out his heart, and then ate it. When he was arrested a week later, the killer was in possession of a copy of "The Satanic Bible." This is the book written by Anton Szandor LaVey, founder of the Church of Satan in San Francisco.)

Christopher's role in the Buffalo murders is complicated by a bizarre conspiracy theory involving two groups of an unspecified "They", whom he insisted were testing his strength. Christopher stated: "I was ordered to kill. Who ordered me to kill? Who set up the conspiracy? I don't know." (New York Post, 9/9/83)

As previously mentioned, Christopher killed 13 people. Thirteen is the number of witches in the Witchcraft coven. Three of Christopher's victims were black. Both Roy Innis of CORE, and famous trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey, have connected the Wicca Cult of Witchcraft to the murders of the black children in Atlanta. Son of Sam mass murderer, David Berkowitz has also been linked to Wicca.

Concerning the murdered black children in Atlanta, Roy Innis said: "I can still take you to the sacrificial altars and the headquarters of the Cult outside Atlanta." Innis was referring to a replica of Stonehenge which stands in the town of Elberton. It was built by a prominent area Freemason. According to the newspaper New Solidarity, Wicca "is one of the highest branches of Freemasonry."

Charles Manson, who some say was initiated into black magic by Anton LaVey, also had a deep hatred of blacks. Manson had planned to blame the Tate-LaBianca murders on the black race. He had even planted the wallet of one of his victims in a service station which was operated by blacks. Manson had hoped that this would result in a backlash from the white community, which in turn would lead to a revolution called "Helter Skelter." (See "In High Places" by Rev. R. Alan Streett)

And at the same time that the Manson Family was making news, the Southern California branch of the Ordo Templi Orientis (O.T.O.) was sending "hate vibrations" into black ghetto areas. Does this mean that there is a conspiracy against blacks? No. But, there is a conspiracy that understands the importance of preying upon race — and that any "Helter Skelter" riot-revolution could best be handled through the imposition of martial law. The networks that will control the population in any such policestate are now being set up. Some of our police agencies have been infiltrated by Western Goals, which is a front for the MOSSAD (Israel's Intelligence Service). That the MOSSAD is linked to the Soviet KGB has been well documented in The Spotlight newspaper.

Another group to watch is the Guardian Angels. Some have suggested that they were set up by the Tavistock Institute of London. Tavistock is the psychological warfare unit of British Intelligence, and is firmly intertwined with Scottish Rite Freemasonry. The Guardian Angels use the Masonic eye-in-the-triangle design on their shirts.

According to the August 1983 issue of Spiral Mobius: "The Guardian Angels (a paramilitary group composed of former member of street gangs) will expand their operations to help police in additional areas this summer, including Atlantic City. A group in New York City calling itself the 'Angel Guardians' and dressed similarly to the Guardian Angels with red berets and shirts having different logos (not the eye-in-the-triangle with wings) has been collecting money by, in effect, using the GA's name. (ABC News, 6/14/83) The GA still wear army fatigue trousers — the camouflaged kind, and stormtrooper type boots. In the film strip, they were shown boarding an incoming train in Philadelphia — each one enters a car. THEIR GROUP STILL SEEMS LIKE A SET-UP FOR A COUP IN THE U.S." (EMPHASIS ADDED)

Guardian Angels bombshell:

'WE FAKED SHOOTING & BEATINGS'

The New York Post of 10/22/83 stated: "Buffalo officials charge that Curtis Sliwa (Editor: Founder of GA) has broken his word to them only three days after his Guardian Angels hit the streets there. 'He has taken into his unit people who have a (criminal) record,' Police Commissioner James Cunningham told The Post in a telephone interview yesterday. 'He stated the first 50 (recruits) would have no record and he would never take anyone with burglary, robbery or other serious charges.' At least five of the first 50 Angels have arrests and convictions, state records show. One new Angel, Gary Abreu, was arrested 14 times and served two years for armed robbery in a Florida prison. 'Sliwa did exactly what he said he would not,' Cunningham said. When the criminal records came to light in Buffalo, Cunningham said, 'Sliwa called me a liar.'" (The recruitment of criminals was a tactic employed by the Communists following the Russian Revolution. Scores of criminals were recruited into the Cheka, the forerunner of the KGB. During the Spanish Civil War, the Communists released criminals, and then used them as shock troops against the population.)

Isn't it interesting that the Guardian Angels were being organized in Buffalo. As we pointed out in the beginning of this article, Buffalo was the stomping ground of the .22-Caliber Killer. Add a criminal like that to the crime rate of any city, and you would need the Guardian Angels, wouldn't you? Was this a case of creating a problem so as to be able to offer a solution to it? If it was, then it was a classic application of the revolutionary technique of "pressure from above and pressure from below."

It would appear that Curtis Sliwa has terrific clout behind him. Let us attempt to track that clout. Sliwa is a friend of David Spangler who is on the Board of Directors of Planetary Initiative. Planetary Initiative is one of the bulwarks of the rapidly growing New Age Movement, and has received the endorsement of the Club of Rome - one of the biggest world government planning outfits. The Club of Rome has a cross-membership with the Tri-lateral Commission and with the P2 Masonic Lodge.

An associate of Spangler is James Park Morton, Dean of the Anglican Cathedral of St. John The Divine in New York City. The Cathedral is the U.S. headquarters of the Knights of Malta, one of the highest Masonic Orders. The activities of the Maltese Knights are directed by the Order of Zion. On February 8, 1982, a reception was held at the Cathedral, and Planetary Initiative was heartily endorsed by the attendants. Spangler, who said man must take a "Luciferic Initiation", has given sermons at the Cathedral. (See "The Hidden Dangers Of The Rainbow" by Constance Cumbey).

In addition to his duties at the Cathedral, Dean Morton has also been linked to the Temple of Understanding, a front for the Lucis Trust (formerly the Lucifer Publishing Company). Writing in CRITIQUE magazine, Toyo Yamamoto stated: "A full study of the Lucis Trust will show many points of intersection with the goals of the Trilateral Commission."

Writing in 1962, Edith Kermit Roosevelt said: "The International Lucis Trust network, which has substantial financial backing (works) to promote UNESCO and the 'New World Religion'. "According to New Solidarity, the Lucis Trust is linked to the Wicca Cult of Witchcraft."

With the mention of Wicca, we have now come full circle. Is it possible that we are dealing with one big, happy Theocracy?
